

Step 1:

Local, regional, and national businesses, governments, and non-profits as well as individuals and councils approach the University of Georgia with ideas, initiatives, and inquiries in search of resources, facilities, and management in order to develop partnerships and collaborations.

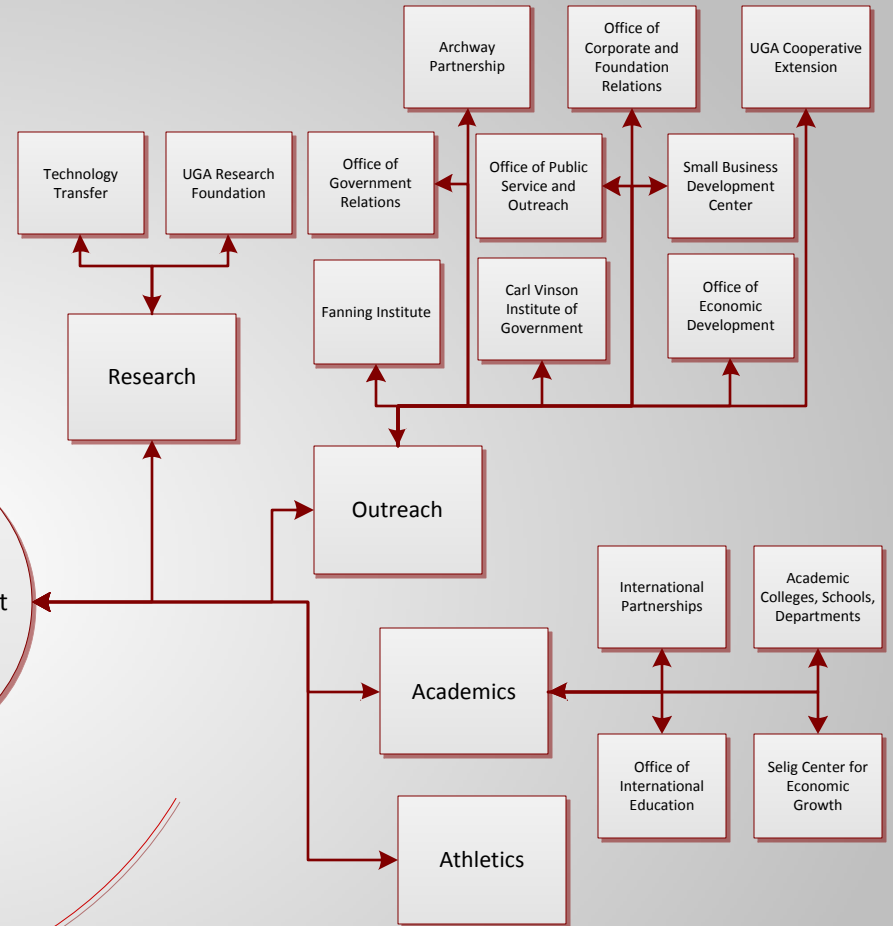

Step 2:

The University of Georgia Economic Development Leadership Council reaches out to University offices, departments, and facilities in search of resources, facilities, and management in order to form partnerships and collaborations with outside clients.

Economic Development Initiatives

Economic Development Resources and Partnerships

Step 4:

University of Georgia Economic Development Leadership Council connects outside clients to the offices, departments, and facilities within the University that are willing and interested in offering resources, facilities, and management in order to foster economic development partnerships and collaborations.

Step 3:

University offices, departments, and facilities compare capacities and extend resources, facilities, and management to outside clients in order to foster partnerships and collaborations.